The need to understand environmental justice is multifaceted within our urban core. The environmental impact to residents within these communities are both social and economical. In the past the concern has been for nature, the trees, animals and natural habitat but this can no longer be the case. A holistic approach to environmental justice includes those that are charged to care for and benefit from the environment to which we LIVE. During this presentation we will explore the rights & duties of environmental justice and a journey through The Junction Coalition experience of social and economic justice as it relates to environment justice and peace. Ask not, what our environment can do for us but what can we do for our environment.
