

Resilient Ecosystems in our own backyard: 70+ years of Metro Parks in Central Ohio

Carrie Morrow, Resource Manager, Columbus and Franklin County Metro Parks

SCHOOL OF ENVIRONMENT AND NATURAL RESOURCES

SEMINAR SERIES

Working in natural resource management at Columbus and Franklin County Metro Parks (Metro Parks) for almost 22 years, Carrie Morrow's talk will provide background on the 27,000 acre Metro Parks system in central Ohio, including strategies to balance recreation with long term conservation and restoration programs.

Morrow will additionally highlight some of the ecological benefits of preserving wildlife and natural resources - including the importance of keystone species, endangered and rare species recoveries, and restored habitats (including Darby Plains Restoration and multiple wetland, stream and reforestation projects).

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 13, 2020

Time: 4:10 - 5:30 p.m.

Location: Howlett Hall 164, 2001 Fyffe Rd.
