

Earthday

APRIL 22, 1970

... a beginning

"... I, James A. Rhodes, Governor of the State of Ohio in proud recognition of the constructive and intelligent perception of our concerned youth in this national challenge as evidenced by their active participation in one hundred and fifty Teach-Ins on campuses the nation over — a superb action which I heartily commend to all loyal American citizens as worthy of their enthusiastic and continuing support, do hereby designate Wednesday, April 22, 1970, as in the State of Ohio."
EARTHDAY

James A. Rhodes
Governor of Ohio

"I commend you and the committee on your efforts to develop and coordinate an excellent program directed toward the solution of the environmental problems which exist today."

AFTER EARTHDAY

April 27th, 1970

5 P.M. in Hitchcock Hall Auditorium

Murray Bookchin, urban analyst and author of Ecology and Revolutionary Thought and Crisis in the City, speaking on "Ecology and Society."

8:30 P.M. in Hitchcock Hall Auditorium

Barry Weisberg, Co-director of the Bay Area Institute, San Francisco, and author of articles for such magazines as Liberation and Ramparts, speaking on "Revolution and Ecology."

EXPERIMENTAL FARMING

The summer of 1970: A project continuing for years thereafter.

Under the guidance of Dr. John Briggs, Entomology, and Dr. Stephen Stollmack, Water Resources Center, The Ohio State EARTHDAY Society will plant and harvest a crop on a small plot of land outside the city of Columbus, using no pesticides or herbicides. Much of the research done on the land will center on the study of particular plant pests.

THE OHIO STUDENT ENVIRONMENT COUNCIL

Founded February 28th, 1970, as a body of colleges and universities in the state of Ohio directing its efforts toward building public awareness on environmental problems.

"The Ohio Student Environmental Council, in view of the lack of unity and leadership concerning any opposition to environmental destruction, is hereby dedicated to the unification of all related student organizations and factions in the State of Ohio who share a common concern over our growing ecological crisis."

— from the Preamble,
Constitution of O.S.E.C. ratified April 11th at Antioch

More particularly, O.S.E.C. is planning to hire a full-time professional lobbyist for the Ohio Legislature to work for environmental concerns in our own state.
